

Towards a Genuine Theory of Democratic Economic Policy

New Articles by Jairo Morales-Nieto

September 2026

Jairo Morales-Nieto presents three articles inspired by the performance of Latin American and Caribbean economies in the 21st century, as evidenced by ECLAC figures in its most recent Economic Studies. The central thesis of these three pieces on the poor achievements and solutions evidenced by ECLAC is concise and direct: the mediocrity of the economic results obtained in Latin America and the Caribbean stems from a limited understanding and restricted application of modern economic policy theory. The three articles were originally published in English by the economic and financial magazine of the Africa Growth Institute in Cape Town in 2026

The articles are:

1. From Standard Theory towards a Genuine Theory of Economic Policy. Vol. 23, Issue 1, Africa Growth Agenda. 2026, Africa Growth Institute.
2. The Objectives of Genuine Democratic Economic Policy and their Interrelationships. Vol. 23, Issue 2, Africa Growth Agenda. 2026 Africa Growth Institute.
3. Instruments of Genuine Democratic Economic Policy and their Institutions. Vol. 23 Issue 3, Africa Growth Agenda. 2026 Africa Growth Institute.
